

CENTRAL EAST LHIN INVESTING IN MORE CARE FOR SENIORS AND COMMUNITY SERVICES Backgrounder

The Central East Local Health Integration Network (LHIN) is receiving $12,267,186 in 2009/10 for a number of initiatives to help seniors live healthy, independent lives in their own homes and to decrease the number of alternate level of care (ALC) patients in hospitals.

Having more home care and community services enables an ALC patient to leave a hospital sooner, making more beds available to emergency room patients. These services also provide ongoing health supports to seniors which reduces their need to go to their local hospital emergency room (ER).

Aging at Home Strategy

The Central East LHIN is receiving $6,893,811 in 2009/10 to increase the range and quantity of services available to seniors, and to help relieve pressure in hospitals and long-term care homes.

This year's investment is an increase of $2,251,934 from 2008/09.

The Aging at Home program expands traditional services that help seniors stay healthy and live at home. These services include home care, assistive devices, assisted living/supportive housing and end-of-life care.

The Aging at Home program also encourages innovation at a local level, by giving LHINs the flexibility to start some creative projects that are tailor-made for seniors living in communities with specific needs.

To date, the following initiatives have been approved for funding in 09/10. The remainder of the funding for this year will be allocated at a later date.

Urgent Priorities Fund - Addressing ALC Pressures

The Central East LHIN is receiving $1,688,675 to help provide community alternatives to hospital care.

Last year, this fund helped to:

- Reduce ER visits by providing additional community supports through supportive housing or by placing more nurses in long-term care homes
- Move ALC patients to a more appropriate health care setting as quickly as possible by improving the electronic flow of information from hospitals to long-term care homes.

Increasing Home Care Services – CCAC Service Maximums

The Central East LHIN is receiving $3,506,200 in 2009/10 for changes made last year to increase the availability and integration of home care services. This included increasing the limits on hours of person support/homemaking services by 50 per cent, and removing limits entirely for patients waiting for a long-term care bed or receiving end-of-life services at home.

Nurse-Led Outreach Teams

The Central East LHIN is receiving $178,500 for a third nurse-led outreach team that has been created to provide long-term care home residents with timely and appropriate care, and stabilize residents who need more urgent attention. (Two nurse-led outreach teams are also being created with funds provided through the Aging at Home Strategy.)

These teams of nurse practitioners and registered nurses will travel to LTC homes to assess urgent problems, determine the need for hospital care, and provide interventions (such as intravenous therapy, antibiotic management and administering oxygen) in cases where unnecessary visits to the hospital and the ER can be avoided.
